Terms and Conditions Overdraft Addendum

Language that is preceded by a box below, is included only if the box is checked or marked with an "X".

Understanding and Avoiding Overdraft and Nonsufficient Funds (NSF) Fees

Generally. This Addendum is part of the Terms and Conditions of Your Account. The information in this Addendum is being provided to help you understand what happens if your account is overdrawn. Understanding the concepts of overdrafts and nonsufficient funds (NSF) is important and can help you avoid being assessed fees or charges. This section also provides contractual terms relating to overdrafts and NSF transactions.

An overdrawn account will typically result in you being charged an overdraft fee or an NSF fee. Generally, an overdraft occurs when there is not enough money in your account to pay for a transaction, but we pay (or cover) the transaction anyway. An NSF transaction is slightly different. In an NSF transaction, we do not cover the transaction. Instead, the transaction is rejected and the item or requested payment is returned. In either situation, we can charge you a fee.

transactions for which there		and we cover a transaction for which er that an overdraft. We treat all other ecount as an NSF transaction, regardless eed.
there is not enough money in your account t	to pay, we consider that an overdraft and e details on this service. We treat all othe	use this service and we cover a transaction for woll charge an Overdraft NSF Paid Fee for each item. For transactions for which there is not enough mone SSF Return Fee if we return the transaction	Please □ Determining Your Available Balance. We use the "available balance" method to determine whether your account is overdrawn, that is, whether there is enough money in your account to pay for a transaction. Importantly, your "available" balance may not be the same as your account's "actual" balance. This means an overdraft or an NSF transaction could occur regardless of your account's actual balance.

Your account's actual balance (sometimes called the ledger balance) only includes transactions that have settled up to that point in time, that is, transactions (deposits and payments) that have posted to your account. The actual balance does not include outstanding transactions (such as checks that have not yet cleared and electronic transactions that have been authorized but which are still pending). The balance on your periodic statement is the ledger balance for your account as of the statement date.

As the name implies, your available balance is calculated based on the money "available" in your account to make payments. In other words, the available balance takes ACH credit transactions and debit card transactions that have been authorized, but not yet settled, and adds or subtracts them from the actual balance. In addition, when calculating your available balance, any "holds" placed on deposits that have not yet cleared are also subtracted from the actual balance.

☐ For more information on ho	w holds placed	on funds in your	account ca	an impact your	available balance
read the subsection titled "A"	Temporary Debit	t Authorization H	lold Affects	Your Account	t Balance."

☑ Determining Your Account Balance.

transacti checks to statemer your acc balance to debit car uses the Our fund	count's actual balance (sometimes called the ledger balance) only includes transactions that have settled up to that point in time, that is ons (deposits and payments) that have posted to your account. The acutal balance does not include outstanding transactions (such as hat have not yet cleared and electronic transactions that have been authorized but which are still pending). The balance on your periodical is the ledger balance for your account as of the statement date. An overdraft or NSF occurs when you do not have enough money in ount to cover a transaction. Holds placed on your account, such as those added at the time of deposit, are deducted from your ledger to determine the amount available to cover transactions. The bank does not deduct the amount of preauthorized pending items, such as deauthorizations, when determining the funds available in your account to pay items during processing. For Business accounts the bank negative collected balance to calculate Interest on Overdraft charges. This is your ledger balance with all uncollected funds deducted. It is availability policy indicates the bank will not consider funds for checks drawn on other banks available (collected) the day of deposit. It is you withdraw these uncollected funds or you have a negative ledger balance, your collected balance will be overdrawn.
account obligate frequer practice we have circums have w	rdrafts. You understand that we may, at our discretion, honor withdrawal requests that overdraw your at. However, the fact that we may honor withdrawal requests that overdraw the account balance does not e us to do so later. So you can NOT rely on us to pay overdrafts on your account regardless of how atly or under what circumstances we have paid overdrafts on your account in the past. We can change our e of paying, or not paying, discretionary overdrafts on your account without notice to you. You can ask us if we other account services that might be available to you where we commit to paying overdrafts under certain estances, such as an overdraft protection line-of-credit or a plan to sweep funds from another account you with us. You agree that we may charge fees for overdrafts. We may use subsequent deposits, including direct so of social security or other government benefits, to cover such overdrafts and overdraft fees.
	☐ For consumer accounts, we will not charge fees for overdrafts caused by ATM withdrawals or one-time (sometimes referred to as "everyday") debit card transactions if you have not opted-in to that service.
	\Box For consumer accounts, we will not charge fees for overdrafts caused by ATM withdrawals or one-time (sometimes referred to as "everyday") debit card transactions.
withdraw your acc can ask such as a	erstand that we may, at our discretion, honor withdrawal requests that overdraw your account. However, the fact that we may honor val requests that overdraw the account balance does not obligate us to do so later. So you can NOT rely on us to pay overdrafts on ount regardless of how frequently or under what circumstances we have paid overdrafts on your account without notice to you. You us if we have other account services that might be available to you where we commit to paying overdrafts under certain circumstances a plan to sweep funds from another account you have with us. You agree that we may charge fees for overdrafts. We may use ent deposits, including direct deposits of social security or other government benefits, to cover such overdrafts and overdraft fees.

For consumer accounts, we will not charge fees for overdrafts caused by ATM withdrawals or one time debit card transactions if you have not opted-in to that service.

□ Nonsufficient Funds (NSF) Fees. If an item drafted by you (such as a check) or a transaction you set up (such as a preauthorized transfer) is presented for payment in an amount that is more than the amount of money available in your account, and we decide not to pay the item or transaction, you agree that we can charge you an NSF fee for returning the payment. Be aware that such an item or payment may be presented multiple times by the merchant or other payee until it is paid, and that we do not monitor or control the number of times a transaction is presented for payment. You agree that we may charge you an NSF fee each time a payment is presented if the amount of money available in your account is not sufficient to cover the payment, regardless of the number of times the payment is presented.

□ Nonsufficient Funds (NSF) Fees. If an item drafted by you (such as a check) or a transaction you set up (such as a preauthorized transfer) is presented for payment in an amount that is more than the amount of money in your account, and we decide not to pay the item or transaction, you agree that we can charge you an NSF fee for returning the payment. Be aware that such an item or payment may be presented multiple times by the merchant or other payee until it is paid, and that we do not monitor or control the number of times a transaction is presented for payment. You agree that we may charge you an NSF fee each time a payment is presented if the amount of money in your account is not sufficient to cover the payment, regardless of the number of times the payment is presented.

Nonsufficient Funds (NSF) Fees.

If an item drafted by you (such as a check) or a transaction you set up (such as a preauthorized transfer) is presented for payment in an amount that is more than the amount of money in your account, and we decide not to pay the item or transaction, you agree that we can charge you an NSF Return Fee or Uncollected Return Fee for returning the payment. Be aware that such an item or payment may be presented multiple times by the merchant or other payee until it is paid, and that we do not control the number of times a transaction is presented for payment. For business and other non-consumer accounts, you agree that we may charge you a fee each time the payment is presented if the amount of money in your account is not sufficient to cover the payment. For consumer accounts, should the Vantage Bank system determine that an item is a representment of a previously returned item, a fee will not be charged. If you feel a fee was charged for an item which had previously been returned and assessed a fee, you agree to notify the bank for a refund within the error reporting timeframe as outlined in the account Terms and Conditions.

☑ Payment Types. Some, but not necessarily all, of the ways you can access the funds in your account include debit card transactions, automated clearing house (ACH) transactions, and check transactions. All these payment types can use different processing systems and some may take more or less time to post. This information is important for a number of reasons. For example, keeping track of the checks you write and the timing of the preauthorized payments you set up will help you to know what other transactions might still post against your account.

⊠ For information about how and when we process these different payment types, see the "Payment Order of Items" section below of Items" section below.

□ Payment Types.
Important Information Regarding "Decoupled" Cards. Decoupled debit cards are debit cards offered or is an institution or merchant other than us. As part of the issuing process, you provide the decoupled debit of issuer with the information it needs to link the decoupled debit card to your account with us. Once this is you can typically use the decoupled debit card as you would any other debit card. Importantly, however, we transactions initiated with these decoupled debit cards may originate as debit card transactions paid by the issuer, we receive and process them as ACH transactions. Additionally, you need to refer to your agreement the decoupled debit card issuer to understand the terms of use for that card. Thus, when our documentation "debit cards," "everyday debit card transactions," or "one-time debit card transactions," we are referring cards issued by us, not decoupled debit cards issued by other institutions or merchants. Different payment can use different processing systems and some may take more or less time to post. Knowing which cards using and how the transaction is processed can help you manage your finances, including helping you to a coverdraft or NSF fees.	card done, while e card ent with ion refers ng to debit t types you are □ Balance Information. Keeping track of your balance is important. You can review your balance in a number of ways including reviewing your periodic statement, reviewing your balance online, accessing your account information by phone, or coming into one of our branches.

☑ Balance Information. Keeping track of your balance is important. You can review your balance in a number of ways including reviewing your periodic statement, reviewing your balance online, accessing your account information by phone, by inquiry at an ATM, or by visiting one of our branches. .
□ Funds Availability. Knowing when funds you deposit will be made available for withdrawal is another important concept that can help you avoid being assessed fees or charges. Please see our funds availability disclosure (generally titled, "Your Ability to Withdraw Funds") for information on when different types of deposits will be made available for withdrawal. For an account to which our funds availability policy disclosure does not apply, you can ask us when you make a deposit when those funds will be available for withdrawal. An item may be returned after the funds from the deposit of that item are made available for withdrawal. In that case, we will reverse the credit of the item. We may determine the amount of available funds in your account for the purpose of deciding whether to return an item for insufficient funds at any time between the times we receive the item and when we return the item or send a notice in lieu of return. We need only make one determination, but if we choose to make a subsequent determination, the account balance at the subsequent time will determine whether there are insufficient available funds. □ Funds Availability.

□ Payment Order of Items. The order in which items are paid is important if there is not enough money in your account to pay all of the items that are presented. The payment order can affect the number of items overdrawn or returned unpaid and the amount of the fees you may have to pay. To assist you in managing your account, we are providing you with the following information regarding how we process those items. We encourage you to make careful records and practice good account management. This will help you to avoid creating items without sufficient funds and potentially incurring the resulting fees.
\square Note that items may not be processed in the order they are received.
Our policy is:

А	r i	TI	or	0		rn	ĸ